PLURALISM IN AMERICAN SOCIETY

1982

Whereas, as Jews, we have historically suffered from the results of intolerance and discrimination,

And whereas, we affirm the basic rights of freedom of religion and thought.

And we are committed to the ideals of a pluralistic society;

We deplore the tactics of minority groups which would impose their narrowly based version of morality on the majority of this society;

We further deplore their tactic of identifying 'patriotic Americanism' with their interpretations of fundamentalist approaches to religion.
